Welcome Week 88

Getting ready to move in.

Taking a break from all the chaos.

An addition to this year's events was a sibling orientation.

Saying good-bye is always hard.

Orientation Counselor Paulanne Cagle helps freshmen with their room keys.

Parents Weekend 88

Dad checks out Parents Weekend bargains at the Campus Shop.

A beautiful autumn morning was the perfect setting for a family stroll through campus.

Parents, students and siblings enjoyed a picnic on the lawn.

One student found that Parents Weekend was the perfect time to pitch a semester abroad.

Guess who's coming to visit?

Math instructor Joyce Speas discusses her beginning algebra class with parents.

Just hanging around with the folks.

Homecoming 1988

"Pride in our past — pride in our future" was the theme for Elon's Centennial Homecoming. Many alumni returned to campus during the weekend, marveling at changes and improvements made since their days at Elon.

The theme, chosen by a committee of students, was designed to invite alumni reminiscing while encouraging students to plan and dream for life after Elon.

A crowd of enthusiastic students cheered the Fighting Christians on to a 44-27 victory over Presbyterian.

The Alpha Sigma Alpha float incorporated the college's centennial logo.

A fan had a few encouraging words for the football team.

Commemorative t-shirts were a hot item. Alpha Kappa Lambda's was especially popular.

Presidents past and president served as parade marshals. Dr. Earl Danieley and Dr. Fred Young rode in style. The Fighting Christians football team also showed some style in its victory over Presbyterian.

Pride in our past — pride in our future

Molly Edmondson was named Homecoming Queen. Her escort was Steve Leach.

A Centennial Homecoming

Molly Edmondson reigns as queen

Molly Edmondson, a junior from Brentwood, Tennessee was named Homecoming Queen during half-time festivities at the football game. A member of Alpha Omicron Pi, she represented her sorority in the queen competition.

First runner-up was Shelli Mackay, a senior from Tuscon, Arizona. Shelli is a member of Phi Mu who represented Kappa Sigma.

Lisa Killmon, representing Sigma Phi Epsilon, was second runner-up. She is a junior from Salisbury, Maryland and is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Dana Moser, a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma who represented her sorority, was fourth runner-up. She is a senior from Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Deborah McCuiston was fifth runner-up. A member of Zeta Tau Alpha, she is a senior from Asheboro, North Carolina and represented Pi Kappa Phi.

The queen competition was based on results in the skit, carnival and float events and a campus-wide vote.

In the skit competition, Kappa Sigma came in first, followed by Black Cultural Society, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Alpha Omicron Pi and Alpha Sigma Alpha.

Alpha Omicron Pi won the carnival fundraiser, followed by Sigma Phi Epsilon, Zeta Tau Alpha, Sigma Sigma Sigma and Kappa Sigma.

Sigma Phi Epsilon took first place in the float competition, followed by Sigma Chi, Alpha Omicron Pi, Sigma Sigma Sigma and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Homecoming events began on Tuesday, October 11 with the Fundraiser Carnival. Organizations set up events such as pie throwing, kissing booth and dunking cage to raise money for the United Way.

On Wednesday, the Skit Competition was held in Whitley Auditorium. Skits ranged from step dances to lip syncs.

Voting for queen began on Thursday, October 13 and continued on Friday. Friday also was the day for a Homecoming Concert featuring Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs.

On Saturday morning, a parade featuring Homecoming Queens from the past began the day's festivities, followed by the football game against Presbyterian College. A Homecoming performance by Wes Ashburn, Elon 88, was held Saturday night in the Back Door.

Homecoming events were organized by the Student Government Association. SGA Advisor David Atkins said he was pleased with the participation among students. "A large number of organizations participated in some way, whether it was sponsoring a representative for queen or building a float."

Deborah McCuiston, above, was fifth runner-up.

The Sigma skit, above, was popular with the crowd.

The Elon Olympics

While the international games were taking place in Seoul, Korea, Elon sponsored its own version of the olympics. Five teams representing East Campus, West Campus, North Campus, commuter students and faculty/staff/graduate students competed in fun events such as an anything goes competition and aluminum can stacking as well as serious track and pool events.

With each team representing a foreign country and sporting a different colored bandana, the Elon games took on a festive air which not even a rainy opening ceremony could dampen.

North Campus, representing Sweden, won the Elon Olympics, followed by commuters representing Italy, West Campus representing Japan, East Campus representing Spain, and faculty/staff/graduate students representing the U.S.S.R.

Members of the Student Union Board took part in a rainy opening ceremony.

Jennifer Giles accepted the gold medal for North Campus from Student Union Board President Tom Nikles.

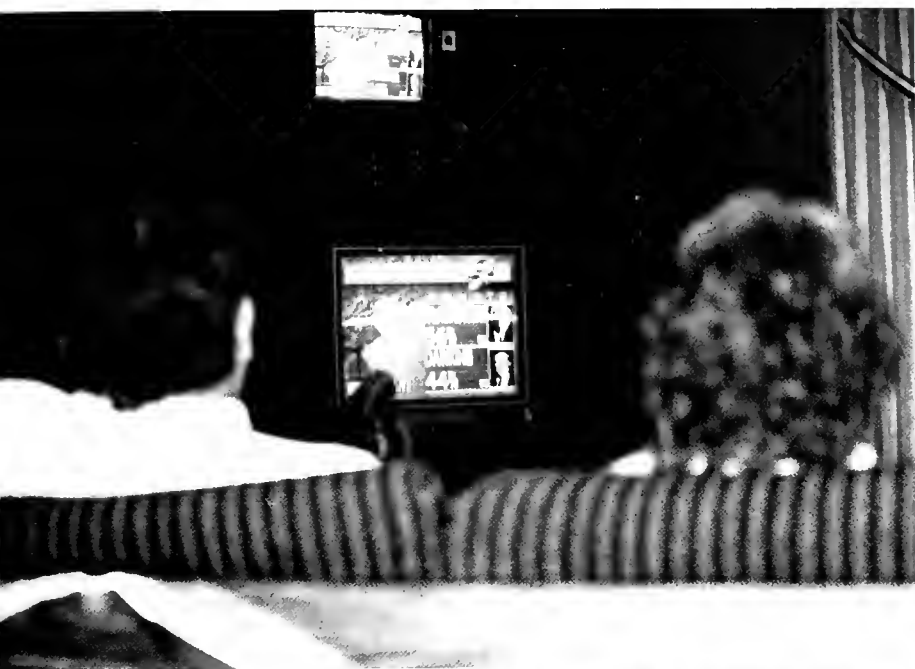

88 Presidential Elections

On November 8, many Elon students anxiously awaited the results of Election '88, which pitted Republican George Bush against Democrat Mike Dukakis. While some students limited their involvement to voting, others took a more active role. Communications students filmed voters at local polling places. Political science majors and election buffs campaigned for favorite candidates, and many students took to wearing campaign buttons and pasting their cars and rooms with bumper stickers and signs.

Campus groups sponsored "mock debates" in which democratic and republican students presented the positions of their candidates. The Student Union Board sponsored "Election Watch 88," which gave students an opportunity to share their elation or dejection, depending on their affiliation.

When students arrived they were examined to determine whether or not they should be placed in the college proper or in the "prep" or Academic Department. This plan worked well, for a vast difference existed between the qualifications and previous education of prospective students.

The Academic Department offered a two-year program. The first-year courses included arithmetic, grammar and composition, geography, elocution, Latin and U.S. history. Those offered in the second year were algebra, grammar, arithmetic, Latin, bookkeeping, and commercial law. In the early years of operation, the ages of students enrolled in this program ranged from one of nine years to those in their teens.

At the conclusion of these studies, students were prepared for the college. They could choose between a Classical Course, which could earn them the degree of Bachelor of Arts, or the Philosophical Course, which resulted in the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. However, little difference existed in the studies required for the two different degrees. Both were designed for completion in four years and included courses in English, Latin, Greek, German, French, algebra, plane and analytical geometry, chemistry, physics, zoology, botany, and general history. Students enrolled in this program during the early period ranged from those in their teens to one forty-three years of age.

The college was always aware of the practical side of education. In addition to the numerous classical courses, its first curriculum offered a business course, which included bookkeeping, commercial law, penmanship, arithmetic, telegraphy, typewriting, and stenography.

On June 2, 1891, the two-day exercises of Elon College's first commencement began. This was not only a notable event throughout the Christian Church, but also one in which "naturally very considerable interest" was felt in Alamance County.

Commencement programs of that day were not merely graduating exercises, but the culmination of the outstanding scholastic accomplishments of the entire student body for the year. It was also a time of social conviviality to the extent that the usually strict rules governing student conduct were relaxed in order to permit the men to escort the ladies to the various events.

Academic excellence was always the goal of the faculty, and its members strove in every manner possible to assist their students to attain it. Considerable emphasis was placed on public speaking and literary composition. Each member of the graduating class was required to make a speech or write an essay. In preparation for this work, essays or speeches were frequently required in the various courses. This led to the following faculty ruling: "A motion prevailed that if a student misspells 40% of his words in a particular essay, that he is required to study spelling for 4 weeks, and further that is spelling be not an excuse for dropping other work."

When the United States declared war against Germany on April 6, 1917, the day was hailed as "memorable" at Elon College. On that very day, three of its "sturdy sons" volunteered in the service of their country.

Reacting to the national emergency, the college varied the usual graduating procedure. For the first time in the institution's history, "men were graduated from their platform in Khaki, and for the first time also men in distant training camps were graduated in absentia."

ACADEMICS & THE ARTS

MAKING THE GRADE

The Academic Grind

"The test on Monday will only cover the first 47 chapters . . ." "Be sure to cite all 25 of your references at the end of your paper . . ." "Please complete exercises six through 12 by our next class meeting . . ." "You'll only need to study two — maybe three — days at the most."

These words strike fear in the hearts of students. But, then, isn't that what college is all about? Between sleeping, eating, and socializing, aren't students expected to attend at least a few classes?

Professors, students, tests, notes, chalkboards, projects — these are the elements which make up academic life. And despite what many students may claim, the majority are quite serious about getting an education. Everywhere on campus — in the classroom, lab, library and LRC — students can be found hard at work. And many times, the dedication pays off with a coveted A or a not-so-bad B.

Still though, wouldn't it be nice — just once — to hear something like "there will be no test on those 47 chapters. And I've decided to cancel the final, too."

CALL TO GLORY

Honors and Teaching Fellows Shine

For 239 Elon students, college offers an extra benefit. Students enrolled in the Honors Program find the title "honors student" brings with it much respect and a few special privileges, but also a variety of additional challenges.

To qualify for the honors program, a student must have graduated in the top 20 percent of his or her high school class, must have scored 550 points on at least one portion of the SAT and must have a minimum 1000-point total on the test. Finally, potential honors students must have a predicted GPA of 3.0 or more as determined by the Admissions Office. Students already enrolled at the college could achieve honors status through a strong faculty referral or personal data.

Lamar Bland, professor of English and director of the honors program, reports the 1988 freshman class honors fellows possessed the highest average SAT scores of all entering classes in the past four years. As a result, the college had to "raise selectivity," Dr. Bland says. During 1988-89, seven percent of the Elon student body was involved in the Honors Program.

Once a student is accepted to the program, he or she must continue to meet certain expectations, including maintaining an overall GPA of 3.0 and a 3.0 in the honors courses. These courses are designed to provide interesting and challenging courseloads for gifted disciplines. While some honors courses are special sections of a standard course, others are specially designed for honors students.

One of the greatest benefits of being an honors student is the early registration feature. Honors fellows can preregister immediately following the seniors, thus gaining a virtually guaranteed seat in desired courses.

But the program has its drawbacks as well. Honors students often had to juggle major, minor and general requirements in order to schedule an honors course each semester. Additionally, many fellows were seriously challenged by their honors courses, struggling to meet the high expectations of their professors. It was sometimes difficult to be a constant "over-achiever."

Some honors fellows bore an additional distinction — and an extra burden. These 29 freshmen were Elon's first crop of North Carolina Teaching Fellows. Elon was one of two private colleges in the state to play a role in the Teaching Fellows program, and those involved were pleased with its progress.

Teaching Fellows receive a scholarship in exchange for their agreement to teach for six years in the state school system. Some of the perks of being a NCTF included group housing, Winter Term travel seminars, and a future semester in London.

Regardless of the demands put upon honors students and teaching fellows, these scholars accept — and meet — the challenges. In the long run, they realize the honors tag will be impressive on transcripts, resumes and diplomas. It also encourages the scholars to realize their full potential.

SO WHAT'S HAPPENING IN THE "REAL" WORLD? Jill D. Hall and Marlana Dare use the time before Dr. John Herold's Honors English class to read the paper. Honors fellows often find that they have little time to consider things outside of academics.

LEARNING BY TEACHING

Student Tutors Have Class

Face it . . . there are times when even the best professor can't help students. Whether due to conflicting schedules, time restrictions, or communication problems, students cannot always count on their professor. That's when student tutors and assistants come in handy.

Perhaps the most visible and diverse group of "student teachers" is the tutors in the LRC. Supervised by Priscilla Haworth, these students are required to have both a high GPA in their field of study and faculty references. They also must complete a tutor workshop.

After the workshop, these "helpers" are prepared to assist other students in one of about 30 subjects. For the students seeking assistance, the benefits are great — but what's in it for the tutors?

In addition to a little pocket money, (tutors are paid by the college), the scholars report earning a strong sense of satisfaction. "It is very rewarding to see somebody be able to do something after you've helped them," says math tutor Brad Cokendolpher.

A more specialized group of tutors are those who work in the new Writing Center. These students are enrolled in a special English class in which they are trained to coach other writers.

Writing Center Director Barbara Gordon says writing tutors are trained to encourage troubled writers through a series of questions. In addition to attending the training class, each tutor works three hours per week in the Writing Center. In return, the tutor receives three hours of credit. Once writing tutors have completed the course, they have the opportunity to work in the center for payment by the college.

But in addition to academic credit and monetary rewards, writing tutors also learn to improve their own writing, according to Melissa Allen, a junior.

Once those papers are written, they probably need to be typed. Many students opt to use word processors, but find the terminals in the computer labs are confusing or threatening to novices. That's when the computer assistants step in. These students, thoroughly trained in the field of computer sciences, also are available to help students enrolled in CIS classes.

If an assignment calls for video communication, student assistants in the communications editing rooms are on hand to assist with an editing machine or help incorporate audio into a video presentation.

And most students enrolled in a science class with a lab quickly learn the lab assistant can be their best friend. Science lab assistants are student who have completed the course and have been selected for the positions. Their duties range from supervision of lab groups to setting up equipment — sometimes even grading papers and teaching portions of the lab.

Whether they work in the LRC, the Writing Center, computer center, editing facilities, labs or elsewhere on campus, student teachers are an essential part of the learning process. They shoulder the responsibility of helping other students achieve a level of perfection — and they find the experience can be both academically and socially rewarding.

OVER THERE

Learning in London

HOOING IT OR TUBING IT? . . . A big adjustment to living in London is not having a car handy. Students found themselves walking more than they were used to. Jen Taylor, Laura Linantud, Meredith Dickerson and Rebecca Shaw, bottom, learn that the underground is sometimes the only way to travel.

Just imagine . . . for the price of regular tuition, room and a seven-day meal plan, you could spend the entire semester in England's capital city. The offer is a tempting one, and this year almost 70 students found the deal too good to refuse.

This fall marked the fourth year that Elon students has the option of spending the entire fall semester in London, and second-semester travellers were the second group to see the city in the springtime.

Participants enrolled in three or four classes and could earn either 12 or 16 credit hours for attending classes in economics, English, fine arts, history or other disciplines. Internships could even be arranged for students who possessed a specific interest in some facet of British life.

Dr. Herbert House led the group of 31 students who participated in the fall program. In addition to fulfilling his role as "link" to Elon, the instructor taught an upper-level biology class. Professor Joyce Speas accompanied the springtime travelers and conducted a class entitled "Topics and Issues in Mathematics."

But the semester wasn't all work and no play . . . plenty of time was left for weekend trips to Scotland, Ireland, and elsewhere on the continent. A ten-day break at mid-semester was also provided for travelling and relaxation.

Students were responsible for their own airfare and personal expenses, but for the most part, the entire semester was not nearly as big a financial burden as one might expect.

The Studies Abroad program is flourishing at Elon, and student participation is at an all-time high. While Dr. Bill Rich, Associate Dean of Academic Affairs and coordinator of Studies Abroad, is happy with the program's success, he has a big goal for the future. Dean Rich would like to see if one day soon, every Elon graduate could say that he or she had spent a term in another culture.

While some students feel that the program will interfere with their planned course of studies at the college, most participants find the semester abroad a perfect time to fulfill their General Studies requirements. And according to Dr. Rich, possibilities are endless as far as the future of Studies Abroad is concerned.

Elon currently offers a full semester study only in London, but plans are in the making for an exchange program with Japan. Additionally, outgoing students have been known to find their own means of studying overseas. Last year, Lynn Bregler accompanied a group from the University of Virginia on their tour of Spain. And this spring, Leah Bowen studied in Australia.

The Studies Abroad office has a wealth of opportunities for interested parties, and anyone with a strong enough interest in earning credit for their educational travels has a chance of participating in one of the programs.

ELON STUDENTS STICK TOGETHER. . . When you're far away from home, it's nice to have a friend or two.

THE ULTIMATE TRIP

Winter Team Travels

Winter Team is typically a semester marked by unusual weather conditions, long hours of class, and a great deal of free time. But for some students, The month-long period meant travel and adventure in London, Mexico or Costa Rica.

For the twenty-first year, a group of Elon students descended upon London. This year's group consisted of more than 180 students and six professors. Each participant earned three credit hours for taking a class in England.

In addition to taking day trips to historical points of interest such as Stonehenge and Stratford-upon-Avon, students were involved in interesting and often entertaining "class projects." Additionally, the entire group attended various cultural events.

The month-long trip overseas included a weekend stay in Edinburgh, Scotland, and a stay-over in Amsterdam. Students also were given a "free week" during which time they could either travel the continent or remain at their London base.

For the second year, a group of students travelled to Mexico in order to work on the "Puentes De Cristo" project. The program is sponsored by the Presbyterian Church and was developed as a means of helping the underprivileged population of the Texas/Mexico border.

Faculty members Dr. Gerardo Rodriguez and Ms. Kathryn Larson escorted the band of good Samaritans. Students earned three semester hours of credit in a General Studies course entitled "Society of Civilization." Participants gained a strong awareness of the social and economic ideals of the border community and additionally developed basic skills in conversational Spanish.

For the first year ever, a group from Elon spent the three-week semester in Costa Rica.

"Home base" for these students was the capital city of San Jose, but weekend trips were scheduled to provide a glimpse of life in Latin America. Dr. Chalmers Brumbaugh and Dr. Earnest J. Lunsford hosted and organized the trip, which included daily class meetings and lectures concerning the economic, social, and political status of the country and region as a whole.

While studying in a foreign country means extra expenses and a few traveling hassles (delayed flights, missing luggage, endless bus trips, and so on), most participants agree that is one of the best learning experiences offered by the college. Any problems that arise generally seem insignificant when compared to the thrill of the overall trip. And while the travellers may have had to scrimp to save up enough money for their journey, the budgeting almost always paid off.

CHANGING THE TUNE

Fine Arts Improvements Abound

Day in, day out, hundreds of students trek around the southern portion of campus — going to classes, talking to professors, working on various projects and so on.

But there is another end of campus. An end that frequently gets ignored. Amidst the gyms and residence halls, there looms an almost over-powering building. In this structure, students attend classes, speak to professors and complete projects — just as they do “up campus.”

This is the Fine Arts Building, an area where students can turn their creative talents loose.

Since its opening in the fall of 1987, the building has continued to grow and develop. This year, the college welcomed a new director for the Fine Arts program. According to Dr. Clair Myers, Associate Dean of Academic Affairs for Fine Arts/Communications, 1988-89 was a year of great changes in the Fine Arts Building.

Physical changes touched every department housed in the building — music, drama, art, and communications. Two video and two audio editing rooms were added for the benefit of the communications majors. The Black Box theater was converted into a television studio complete with lights, sound system and cyclorama. The drama department began furnishing a scene shop with various power and hand tools, a paint area and storage cabinets. Furthermore, the entire look of the front office changed, becoming what Dr. Myers labelled “more efficient, more professional.”

There was also the addition of faculty and staff members, including Fred Rubeck, drama professor and director of campus dramatic productions, and John Drtina, technical director of the Fine Arts Building. The art department welcomed Mike Sanford, and Gerald Gibson and Pat Kinney rounded out the Journalism/Communications staff.

Partly due to the expanded facilities, partly because of the additional staff, and partly thanks to an increased awareness of the importance of the arts, the Fine Arts Building became the facility in which new classes were taught. According to Dr. Myers, the number of arts courses offered was “substantially increased.” More courses were offered in drama, music and art, new directing and stagecraft classes were established, and additional selections became available for non-majors and honors students.

One of the most impressive changes to occur in the center was a renewed feeling of cooperation amongst the various departments. Communications staff and students made videotapes of drama, dance and music productions, and drama and music students cooperated during the presentation of the annual Madrigal Dinner.

On the whole, the Fine Arts Building serves as a center for students who are interested in displaying and improving their creative talents. And thanks to the great changes in the facilities, scheduling, and staff, the building served its purpose better than ever. “There isn’t a part of the program that hasn’t taken a step forward,” Dr. Myers said.

IT'S JUST A MATTER OF TIME . . . Senior Kathy Meadows, above at right, impatiently waits the grand opening of the revamped Black Box Theater, which has become a TV production studio.

AN EVEN EXCHANGE . . . Angela Meadows, right, shows Sharon Walters-Bower her student ID to receive tickets to an on-campus theater production. Regular box office hours are just one of many improvements in the building's main office.

WHAT EXACTLY ARE THESE THINGS? Junior Jimmy Steen, below, contemplates several pieces of work on display on the walls of the Fine Arts building.

THERE'S A WORLD OF POSSIBILITIES . . . Any student who wants to sample art classes has a variety to choose from. Kelly Benter, above, a biology major, has tried both an honors music class and a theater workshop course.

KILLING TWO BIRDS WITH ONE STONE . . . Communications professor Gerald Gibson explains the fundamentals of editing to Jen Serio. Gibson is working on a "Campaign 88" project for a political science department.

PEAK PERFORMANCE

Students Can't Hide Their Talents

The Fine Arts Building is the spot on campus where you can always count on seeing the physical results of student's hard work. Perhaps more than in other disciplines, fine arts and communications majors produce tangible results.

"Elon, for a school of its size, is doing more programming and guest artists . . . than any other school I know of," said Dr. Clair Myers, director of the Fine Arts Program. The center played host to several series of cultural programs — some celebrating the school's Centennial, some promoting the talents of guest artists, and still others encouraging the viewing of classic films.

But not all fine arts programming featured outside artists. Students themselves were the stars of many productions. The theater arts department began its season with a musical review. "Tintypes" pleased audiences and participants alike, and kicked off a series of successful dramatic presentations.

The Emanons, choir, Show Band and orchestra provided musical entertainment for the campus and beyond. The choir performed in Austria and Hungary, and the Emanons extended their Winter Term tour into Maryland and New Jersey. The Construction Company, Elon's dance troupe, made substantial improvements, and many dancers also choreographed other performances.

Art students proudly displayed their work on the walls of the Fine Arts Building, where they could be examined and admired by others rushing to class, rehearsal, or performance.

Communications students, too, could see and hear their handiwork after spending long hours in the audio or video editing labs or TV studio.

Throughout the Fine Arts Building, students are doing things which bring them pleasure and — hopefully — acclaim. Whether rehearsing with the choir, practicing in the soundproof booths upstairs, splicing together audio tape or putting the finishing touches on an art project, students who label the building their "second home" deliver proof of their hard work.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT for choir members, who warm up in anticipation of the annual tree-lighting concert.

IT'S MUSIC TO HIS EARS . . . Junior Eric Stegall practices the "Hungarian Folk Song" for Carol Link's piano class.

READY FOR THE BIG TIME . . . "Tintypes" stars Rich Green, Candace Rotolo, Alex Newman and Lynda Lou Wright, opposite page, top, ham it up at one of their many rehearsals. All that dedication paid off for the group — the musical review was a tremendous success.

HE'S MULTI-TALENTED . . . When he's not working as a tutor in the LRC, double major Brad Cokendolpher, left, might be practicing his guitar.

AND A LITTLE PAINT THERE . Kathy Friend spends some of her free time in the art room, where she is busily completing one of her projects.

TAKING NOTES

Students' Opinions

How do Elon's students feel about the various aspects of academic life? We asked . . . and here's what a few scholars had to say:

Q: Where's the best place to study?

A: "The second floor of the Fine Arts Center in one of the sound-proof booths!"

— Ellen Reamy

Q: How do you feel about your toughest class?

A: "I've never spent this much time studying for a class (physics) and not do well anyway."

— Valerie Owen

Q: What do you think of tests?

A: "I enjoy taking tests because I love to study!"

— Brett Allen
(sarcastically, of course)

Q: How important are grades?

A: "Not important enough to stay home on a weekend."

— Pam Wiggins

Q: What's the strangest way you've ever seen someone studying?

A: "I once saw a woman sitting in a corner of the library reading out loud . . . and she had her headset on at the same time."

— Amy Nixon

Q: Who's the perfect professor?

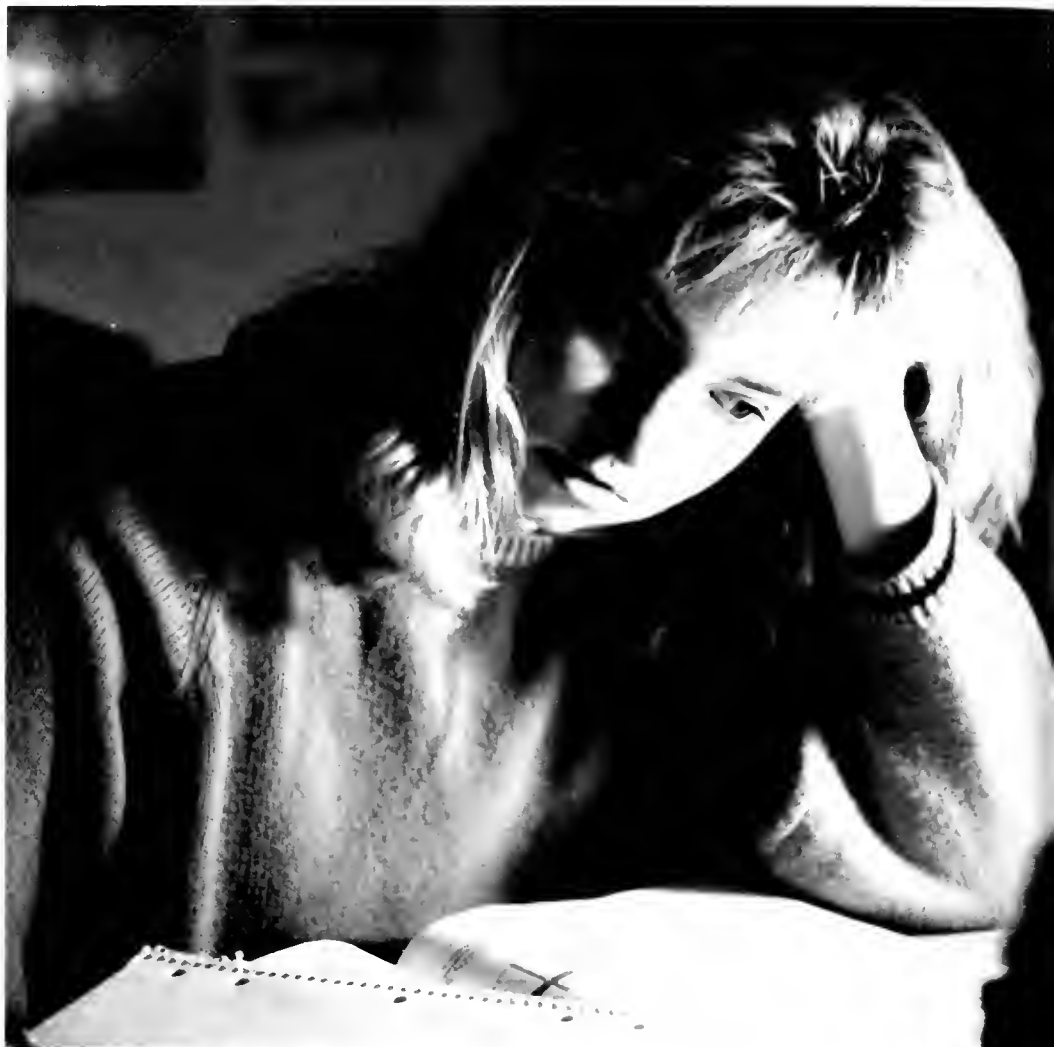

A: "One who never calls roll."

— Amy Richardson

Q: How do you feel about eight o'clock classes?

A: "I've been avoiding them ever since fall semester of my freshman year!"

— David Graham

Within a short time after the college opened, the students followed the custom prevalent in most institutions of higher learning at the time by organizing literary societies. The Philologian and the Clio were for men, and the Psiphelian for the women. Their purpose was to meet weekly "for improvement in composition, oratory, reading and debate, and acquiring a knowledge of parliamentary law." Suitable rooms were assigned the societies in the College Building for their meetings on Friday evenings or Saturday mornings. Within a few years, each of these "halls" was decorated with wallpaper and furnished in an attractive manner. By 1894 the students had raised and spent $1,451 for this purpose, including $100 for a chandelier.

The value to the students of participation in the activities of the societies was considered sufficient for the faculty to make the following ruling: "Any student above 2nd academic who is not an active member of one of the Literary Societies be required to write an essay of 1,000 words every two weeks, subject to be given him by the Prof. of English." This coercion was modified by the social side of the organizations. Frequently one or the other obtained permission to have an "ice cream supper" or a party of some kind, and the three societies became the center of social life at the college during its first three decades.

Some of the parties were not only for pleasure but also to raise funds for some particular project of the organization. The public was invited to attend these affairs, at which guests paid for their refreshments. In 1892 one such occasion was publicized by a newspaper announcement: "A high pink tea and social reception will be given in Elon College chapel Saturday evening, May 20th. Doors open at 7:30 pm. Ice cream, cake, Norfolk strawberries and Elon cream will be served by the pink tea girls in attractive style and flowing abundance."

The affairs were popular, and by such means the societies financed the furnishing of their meeting places and contributed to a number of college activities. Virtually every student belonged to one of the groups, among which strong, but friendly, rivalry existed until they were replaced by other organizations and officially disbanded in 1933.

Reserve Officers Training Corps

Cadets prepare for army commission

Army ROTC offers training in all areas of leadership — organizational, social and academic — and provides disciplinary skills to students. The program then places cadets into positions in which they might use what they have learned. In addition to classroom lectures, cadets attend a weekly lab which covers field operations such as drill and ceremony, map reading, working with M-16's and M-60's, and advanced tactical navigation.

Other advanced training courses which are offered outside of the ROTC Department are airborne training, air assault training (both at Fort Benning, Georgia) and basic and advanced camps at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. During Winter Term, cadets John Delaney, Kelly Spillane and Peter Newcomb were chosen to attend airborne training.

ROTC also performs a variety of services for the campus and community. Each semester, ROTC organizes a blood drive in Jordan Gym for the American Red Cross. At Christmas, cadets help place the luminaries for the tree lighting ceremony. The department also sponsors a food drive, provides ceremonial flag raising, and performs the presentation of colors at all home football games.

Cadets also have ample opportunity for social involvement within the department, including the Annual Dining In, a trip to Washington D.C. and the Pentagon each year, and a SCUBA qualification course in the Florida Keys over Spring Break.

All the academic, physical and social learning prepares cadets for their final goal — a commission as a second lieutenant in the United State Army. Those who received commissions during 1988-89 include Thomas Rogers, Jeffrey Slade, Daryll Hines, LaDonna Martin, Jean Chausse, Anthony Roper, Anthony Handy, Thomas Heyden, David Bogess, and Luke Anderson.

Cadets anticipate many changes in the department at the close of the 1988-89 academic year, including farewells to Captain Charlie Jackson, Master Sergeant Charles Browning, and Staff Sergeant Leonard Johnson, who were reassigned. For 1989-90, Sergeant Tyrone Thorton and Sergeant Valarie Hebert will join the Elon ROTC program.

Cadets use a field radio to wish the pilot a fond farewell as he lifts off from the LaCrosse Field after the Open House.

Residence Life Week, usually held in the fall, incorporates a variety of social and educational activities which promote awareness of issues pertinent to campus living. Past programming efforts have included stereotypes, safe sex, political campaigns and roommate relations.

This year, Residence Life Week concluded with A Night on the Town, the first semi-formal dance sponsored by RHA. It was held at the Ramada Inn, and music was provided by Greg Lee.

The Kappa Sigs said it best: "How suite it is." Organizations which don't receive houses will still have an option for living as a group.

Members of Elon's fraternities and sororities spent much of the Centennial year preparing for the completion of six new Greek lodges being built just east of Harper Center. Throughout the year, Greeks watched as construction work progressed — and wondered which six groups would inhabit the new structures.

The lodges, to be completed by the fall of 1989, carry a price tag of $1.8 million. Each will house 11 students. The college will pay 75 percent of the costs, and the groups selected to live in the lodges will pay the remainder.

Greeks spent Winter Term completing a lengthy application, which included questions regarding the organization's support from national headquarters, community service projects, involvement in the Panhellenic Council or Interfraternity Council, and goals for the college and the chapter for the next five years.

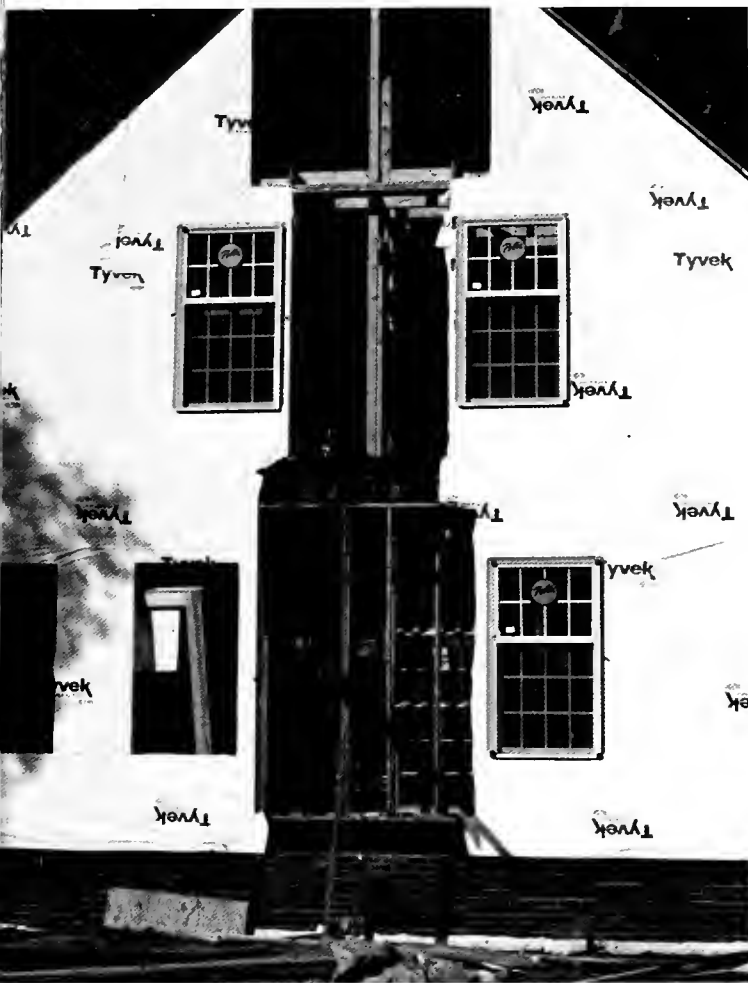

Each organization also was required to write an essay explaining why their fraternity or sorority should be chosen to receive a house.

In addition to the application itself, college administrators planned to evaluate each group's overall GPA at the end of Fall Semester 1988, care of any college-owned housing in the past, and the history of the chapter in relation to the college, including disciplinary records.

Greek Advisor David Atkins said the houses should strengthen the Elon Greek system. "The new housing will definitely add to the Greek system and give them an opportunity to work together."

But some Greeks feared that organizations which didn't receive houses would suffer in terms of membership recruitment. Eventually, the college plans to expand the new Greek Row with an additional six houses, Atkins said. In the meantime, organizations which do not receive one of the new lodges will still have the opportunity to live in a suite in New Area.

Soon after construction began in the fall, the new Greek houses began to take shape.

Greek Advisor David Atkins leads the Student Affairs staff on a tour of Greek Row under construction. College plans call for Atkins to move into a house near Greek Row.

HOMECOMING 1988

Greeks show pride

"Pride in our past — pride in our future" was the theme of Elon's Centennial Homecoming, and Greeks showed a lot of pride throughout the weeks' activities. From skits to floats to fundraisers, fraternity and sorority members worked hard to make Elon's special celebration one to remember.

The hard work paid off for Alpha Omicron Pi, whose candidate, Molly Edmondson, was crowned Homecoming Queen during half-time on Saturday. The coronation capped off a week of competition which determined the queen and her court.

Homecoming events began on Tuesday, October 11, with the fundraising competition. Alpha Omicron Pi raised the most money, followed by Sig Ep and Zeta Tau Alpha. Proceeds were donated to the Almanace County Shelter for the Homeless.

On Thursday, October 12, the skit competition was held, with Kappa Sigma taking first place followed by the Black Cultural Society and Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Kappa Sigma also won the voting for Homecoming Queen on Thursday and Friday, with their candidate receiving the most votes.

The parade was held Saturday morning, and Sigma Ep won the float competition. Tri Sig was second and AOPi was third.

Members of the Homecoming Court were Shelli Mackay, first runner-up representing Kappa Sigma; Lisa Killmon, second runner-up representing Sigma Phi Epsilon; Dana Moser, third runner-up representing Sigma Sigma Sigma; and Deborah McCuiston, fourth runner-up representing Pi Kappa Phi.

First place in individual competitions were: Sigma Phi Epsilon, float; Alpha Omicron Phi, fundraising; Kappa Sigma, skit and voting.

Alpha Sigma Alpha's representative Sheri Brown was treated to some slick dance moves on the sidelines. Her escort, Rob Borgstrom, didn't let the Show Band's efforts go to waste.

AKA's discuss their colony under the watchful yet approving eye of Duckey, their mascot.

Interested students find out about frats

Fraternity Open House is held each semester to introduce men to the Greek system. Open house also provides the fraternities with an opportunity to promote their organizations by displaying their group's regalia, discussing brotherhood, and inviting men to their rush parties.

The day begins early, with fraternity members setting up tents, running extension cords, decorating their booths and preparing the refreshments they will serve to guests.

Amid a carnival atmosphere, fraternities compete for the attention of prospective pledges. Who will serve the best food? Whose entertainment is more fun? Which booth is the most attractive?

But Open House is not for men only. Many women on campus also attend to help their favorite frat make a good impression, to check out the new men on campus or to participate in Kappa Alpha's annual Legs Contest, an Open House favorite.

But for fraternities, the day doesn't end when the Legs Contest is over and the crowds have gone home. The end of Open House means the beginning of a full-scale clean up, including collapsing the tents and picking up trash.

For many, Open House just wouldn't be the same without KA's Best Legs contest.

Kappa Sig Rob Borgstrom uses Open House for a little SGA politicking.

What are they? Sorority and fraternity rush parties.

Greeks go for green

Greek organizations host fundraisers throughout the year to raise money for their chapters, their philanthropies, and other causes.

One of the major fundraisers is Derby Days sponsored by Sigma Chi. This year, Elon's first Derby Days competition raised over $2,500. The fraternity donated $1,000 to its philanthropy and $300 each to the Elon College Community Church and the Elon Homes for Children. The remainder was divided among the competing sororities for donations to their philanthropies.

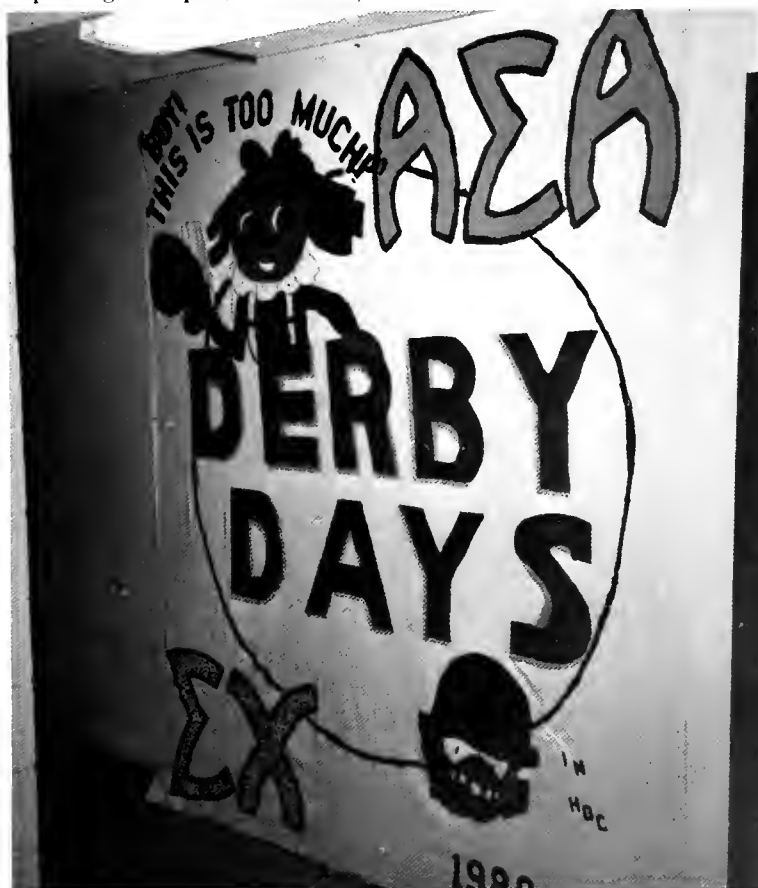

Phi Mu was the winner of Elon's first annual Derby Days, and Kipper Lynch was named Derby Days Queen. Second place went to Alpha Sigma Alpha, followed by Alpha Omicron Pi, Zeta Tau Alpha and Sigma Sigma Sigma, respectively.

The annual Phonathon is another major fundraiser, with proceeds going to the college's annual fund. For two weeks, members of fraternities and sororities spend their evenings calling alumni and friends of the college to secure pledges.

This year, $180,515 was raised during the Phonathon, with Phi Mu raising $29,825. Zeta Tau Alpha secured the highest number of pledges with 661.

In addition to the major fundraisers, Greek organizations raise money for their chapters through car washes, bake sales, t-shirt, candy and doughnut sales.

Alpha Sigma Alpha's banner was a colorful tribute to Derby Days.

SERVICE PROJECTS

Every Greek organization on campus participated in a community-wide clean-up in the fall.

Greeks collected trash along roads and railroad tracks.

Greeks clean up Elon

Community service is a cornerstone of any Greek organization, and Elon's fraternities and sororities are no different. Greeks find a variety of ways to help the college and the community.

In one of the largest cooperative efforts ever, Elon's fraternities and sororities joined together in the fall to clean up the community surrounding campus. Truckloads of trash and debris were picked up on a crisp and sunny Sunday. While Greeks agreed it was hard work, they termed the effort a success and planned to do it again next year.

Greeks also participate in the Red Cross Blood Drives held each semester in Jordan Gym. The ROTC, which sponsors the blood drives, recruits fraternities and sororities to take donors' temperatures, help donors complete paperwork, and escort the donors to and from the collection stations.

The blood drives also give Greeks the opportunity to compete to see which organization has the highest percentage of donors.

Other services projects include helping to build a playground for a local day care, serving as teachers' helpers at the elementary school, participating in the CROP Walk and Meals on Wheels and hosting parties at retirement homes.

Truckloads full of trash were collected during the cleanup.

A congratulatory kiss was in order.

The AOPi sisters were all smiles at the awards presentation.

Each semester Elon awards the sorority and fraternity with the highest GPA by engraving the groups' names on a plaque which hangs in Alamance Building. For the spring of 1988, the awards were presented to Alpha Omicron Pi and Sigma Chi.

Interest was especially keen in baseball games played by teams of the educational institutions in the state against each other. Elon students were proud of their school and its athletic potential, real or imagined. They were anxious to join in the competition, but the rules did not allow the men to "leave the College to engage in athletic contests . . .

However, permission was obtained in 1899 to play a game at Elon with Bingham, a nearby preparatory school. This was Elon's first baseball game with another school. The results were not impressive; the visitors won by a score of 25 to 5. Undaunted by the defeat, however, the Athletic Association petitioned the trustees for authority to participate in intercollegiate games . . .

When the matter was broached to the trustees, they authorized the faculty to use its judgment in the matter. (The faculty) in 1900 approved an occasional game with another institution away from campus, subject to the following stipulations:

- A failure to make a grade of 70 on any subject or being demerited by the faculty shall prevent any student playing an inter-collegiate game.
- Any student under 21 years of age must have written permission from parent or guardian to the Chairman . . .
- All parties must be bona fide students for two weeks previous to the intercollegiate game . . .
- None but those who are placed on the match team are allowed to go to any contest if on school day and if on holiday rules for visiting away from College apply.

Permission was then granted to play at Guilford College on March 31, and the same team on April 14 at Elon College. The faculty approved all the players requested for Elon's first intercollegiate contest except one, who was "adjudged not eligible for being inattentive to class duty and smoking cigarettes." Although Elon was defeated in both games . . . the students were jubilant over having won the concession to play against other colleges.

In October 1909, . . . the trustees agreed with a faculty recommendation "that football games be allowed under the rules and qualifications for baseball and that for the first year only such games be allowed as will not require the team to be absent from the school over night."

Almost immediately afterward, a practice game was played with Greensboro High School. Then on October 23, the team played Bingham Military Academy. This was the first college football game noted in the faculty records. The Elonites were the victors, which many considered a good omen.

The college faculty's indignation was aroused by a published account of the game with Bingham that was "uncomplimentary" to the Elon players. The writer . . . was given the ultimatum of "apologizing to the satisfaction of (the) Athletic Committee . . ." or permission would not be given to play a game scheduled that day at Mebane with Bingham. Evidently the demand was ignored; consequently, the game was not officially sanctioned.

ATHLETICS AT ELON

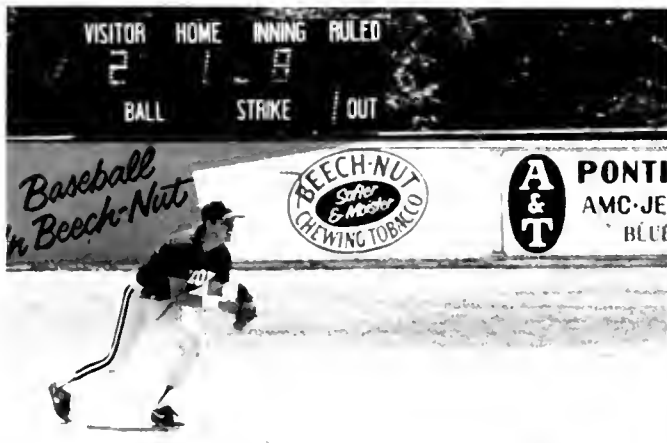

Baseball team slugs it out

Baseball has always been one of Elon's athletic powers, and the 1988 season was no exception. At one point ranked fifth in the nation, the team finished the season with a record of 26 wins and 15 losses. The Fightin' Christians were fourth in the conference and fifth in the district.

Coach Rick Jones, the winningest coach in Elon history, relied on captains Tom Alessi, Jimmy Duncan, Jerry Russell and David Terry. Pitchers Chris Cole and Scott Lesmes provided the defensive edge Elon needed to defeat powerhouse teams such as Virginia Tech, William and Mary and Carson-Newman.

On offense, Tony Bellavia led the team with a batting average of .417 in 12 at bats. Jeff Kipila posted a .409 average with 57 RBIs in 127 trips to the plate. Alessi, with 139 at bats, earned an average of .396 with 41 RBIs.

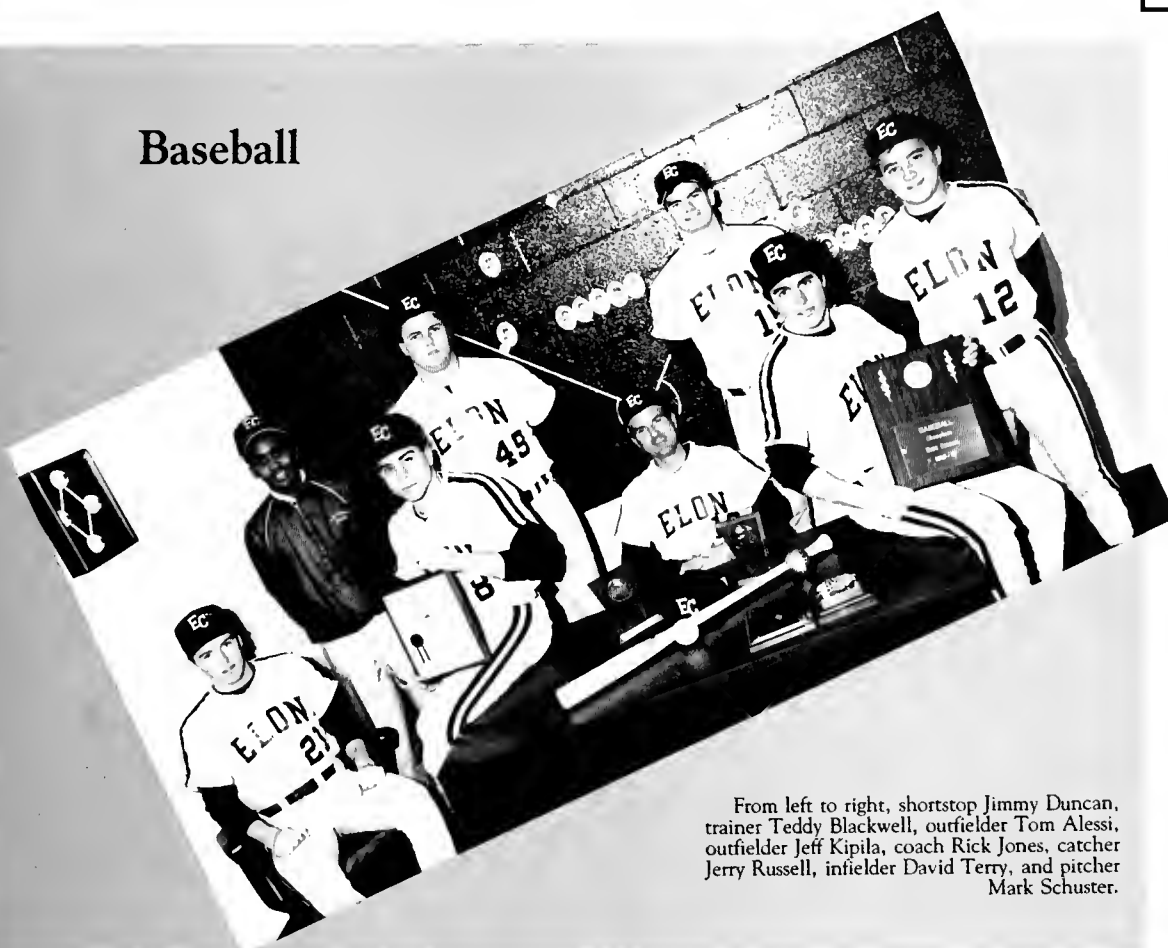

First baseman Bill Namentz looks to Coach Rick Jones for the signal.

Jimmy Duncan, Elon's starting shortstop for the past three seasons, performs under pressure. Above, his fielding skills are well known to teammates, fans and opponents. At right, Duncan hits his solo homerun which gave Elon its 1-0 win over Bradley University.

Sliding Into A Winning Season

Under the strong leadership of Coach Sue Ray, the women's softball team batted out a winning season in 1988. The talented Lady Christians capitalized on their good attitude, turning in a season record of 14 wins and 10 losses.

Captain and pitcher Mia Brayboy led the team as Most Valuable Player. A batting average of .456 proved her value at the plate as well as on the mound. Jill Seawell's .523 batting average and four homeruns thrilled spectators. Leftfielder Kris Porter's glove provided an obstacle many opponents learned to respect.

Golf

The Elon golf team had a successful 1988 season, ranking near the top in most tournaments attended. The starting five team members are Bob Byrnes, Craig Gunn, Mike Kenney, Sean Taylor and Woody Jacobs.

Bob Byrnes led the team with a season average of 76.68. A two-time All American, Byrnes won the conference and district invitational titles and was selected to represent the United States in the World University Golf Championships held in Sardinia, Italy.

Mike Kenney also made the All-Conference team, posting a season average of 79.00.

As a whole the team placed second in the conference and third in the district.

Bob Byrnes led the Fighting Christian golfers and was chosen to represent the U.S. in an international college tournament.

Let's Hear It For School Spirit

A special thanks goes out to all of the school-spirited fans at Elon College. The guys pictured at right cheering on the Fighting Christians basketball team are a good example of the enthusiasm which helps our athletes strive for success.

However, not all fans stand on the sidelines stomping, whistling and clapping. This thank you is also extended to the parents, faculty and staff, cheerleaders, alumni and community members who helped support the Elon athletic teams this year.

The 1988 women's tennis team finished third in the conference and fourth in the district with a record of nine wins and 6 losses. Katie Carpenter, Coleen Kirk and Mary Liz Henson led the team in singles with personal records of 10-

Coach Jacie Myers expressed pride in her young 1988 team, which was comprised of fresh-

Elon Slams In Tennis

The 1988 men's tennis team had a successful season, finishing tenth in the NAIA league with 20 wins and three losses. In addition, the team recorded its second consecutive year as conference champs. Coach Tom Parham described his team as a fine group of over-achievers who broke some new ground for Elon tennis.

Leading the over-achievers were team captain Duane Johnson and Dominic Moerstedt, the first All-Americans for Elon. Johnson also was an Academic All-American. Stefan Hager was honored as Conference Player of the Year.

A winning record, a new tennis complex, a roster of strong players and conference and national honors combined to make 1988 what Parham called "the best season ever."

Full speed ahead

Women's soccer continued to be an Elon powerhouse, with the 1988 team recording a season record of 14-0. At one time ranked sixth in the nation, the Lady Christians raced full speed ahead into the NCAA Eastern Regionals. They were knocked out in the semi-finals by Green Mountain, but returned to defeat Geneva in the Regional Consolation Match.

Leading the attack were junior forward Terry

Makers and freshman forward Chris Greenspan. Makers was Elon's leading scorer with 44 points. She scored 16 goals and had 12 assists in 20 games. Greenspan had 26 points, scoring nine goals and eight assists.

On the defense, goalkeepers sophomore T.J. Leverington and freshman Lauren Ounjian kept the opponents away from the net. The pair allowed only 25 points during the season. Ounjian tallied eight shutouts, while Leverington recorded one.

Coach Steve Ballard, in his final season with Elon, expressed pride in the women's soccer team. Following a win over Guilford in the area playoffs, Ballard said his team had played "one of the best games any Elon Women's soccer team ever played."

Ballard resigned at the close of the season in order to pursue other interests.

Getting a kick out of winning

This year went a long way toward building Elon's reputation as a soccer leader. With a record of 11 wins, three losses and two ties, the men's soccer team fought hard to earn its trip to the NAIA Eastern Regionals.

Though the Fightin' Christians lost in the final game to Alderson-Broadus, the level of competition and Elon's tough performance were testimonial enough: soccer is serious business at Elon!

Under the leadership of Coach Steve Ballard, the team benefited from peak performances by forward Michael Wessels and goalies Todd Hudson and John Brill. Wessels was leading scorer for the Christians with 38 points in 20 games. He tallied 15 goals and eight assists for a season average of 1.90.

Defensively, Hudson and Brill allowed only 17 goals. Hudson allowed six goals in 12 games and had five shutouts. Brill allowed 11 goals in 17 games, also with five shutouts.

Fightin' Christians hang tough

It was a tough season for Macky Carden's Fightin' Christian football team. But the spirited squad didn't let a rain-soaked home schedule and injuries to the first and second string quarterbacks get them down.

Turning in a season mark of six wins and five losses, the Christians produced some outstanding individual performances. Among them was freshman quarterback Page Inge, who took over the helm during the first game of the season after first-stringer John Wadsworth and second-stringer Kelly Holder both were injured in the first quarter.

Senior tailback Dwayne Clark completed his third outstanding year for Elon. The second all time leading rusher and scorer, in three years Clark has gained more yards than any back in college football.

George Dixon, a senior tailback, scored five touchdowns in one game, tying the school record. Dixon also set a record for single-season kick returns with 822 yards.

Perhaps the biggest disappointment for the football team came at the close of the season when Coach Carden announced his resignation as head coach. In his five years as head coach, Carden tallied an Elon career record of 34 wins and 17 losses.

Bump! Set! Spike!

Volleyball

The 1988 women's volleyball team had a rebuilding season, fielding many freshmen players, a new coach, and only one senior on the team. Undaunted by a season record of 7-14, the young team continued to work hard throughout the season.

While many students consider volleyball a fun leisure time activity, the women on Elon's team, including coach Sue Leonard, know it's also a lot of hard work. The team endured strenuous daily practices and played up to three games a week.

But all the hard work paid off for senior team captain Michelle Engle, who was named All-Southeast "Academic All American" and Carolina Conference "All Conference Team."

Courting victory

It was a season of ups and downs for Coach Bob Burton's Fighting Christian basketball team, which earned an overall record of 11-19 but captured Elon's first tournament championship in eight years.

Early in the season, the team journeyed to Puerto Rico to participate in the Championship of the Americas. The only North American team to participate, Elon won four of the five games it played and brought home not only the championship, but also an Americas Cup MVP trophy for junior guard William Massenburg.

Burton, who secured Elon's invitation to the international tourney, said his team benefited from the trip both on and off the court. The players learned to play basketball the international way — "quick and physical" — and they experienced a foreign culture. But the most important lesson, according to Burton, was "team togetherness and experience. That's what the Championship of the Americas will always mean to this team and to me."

Building on his outstanding performance in Puerto Rico, Massenburg remained hot throughout the season. He was Elon's top scorer for the season with 572 points. Senior Dennard Barnes was second with a total of 223 on the season, including 38 three-pointers. Freshman Pat Ceasar, whose spectacular dunks thrilled the crowds in Puerto Rico and across the state, was third highest scorer with 230.

Ceasar also was aggressive on the rebound, with a total of 101, including 62 defensive rebounds. Pat Recio captured 98 rebounds for Elon, and Massenburg nabbed 90.

Season average leaders included Ceasar, whose field goal percentage was .649, nailing 98 out of 151 attempts. At the line, Elon's leader was Anthony Akers who hit nine of ten attempts for an average of 9.000.

Cagers keep fighting

The Lady Christians basketball team proved they could be Fightin' Christians, too, scrapping out a season record of 7-17 with a conference record of 5-9 and a district mark of 9-12.

Junior forward Barbara Johnson led the team in scoring with 461, followed by senior Mae Haith, also a forward with 278 points, junior guard Lynnice Joyner with 223 and freshman center Jana Siler with 214.

Freshman guard Courtenay Buchanan hit 15 three-pointers for the Lady Christians, and senior guard Sharon Foust hit nine.

Johnson also led in rebounds with 207, including 129 on the defense. Siler followed up with 197 rebounds, and Joyner added 167.

At the line, freshman forward Angie Padon earned a perfect 1.0 percentage, hitting both of her free throw attempts. Freshmen Terry Allison and Jane Frye both had .750 percentage at the line, and Johnson's average was .736.

Siler led in field goal percentages with .524, followed by Joyner with .460, Johnson with .453 and Padon with .441.

E — L — O — N!

Let's hear it for those Elon cheerleaders and stuntmen! They practice every day. They give up many evenings and Saturdays to attend games, and they get a lot of sore muscles in the process. But these 16 dedicated students don't seem to mind — they believe in Elon!

Cheerleaders and stuntmen often are over looked when passing out the accolades for our athletic successes. Yet it's these spirited individuals who keep the teams' spirits high when they aren't as pumped up as they need to be. It's the cheering squad who gets the crowd into the games, creating excitement and enthusiasm. And it's the cheerleaders and stuntmen who entertain and thrill the fans at halftime with intricate pyramids and fancy stunts.

Cheerleaders are a vital link between the fans and the athletes. So let's hear it for Elon spirit — and spirit-makers!

The Elon cheerleaders wave to the crowd as they participate in the Homecoming Parade. The Fighting Christian, right, jams to the tunes of the Showband.

On a warm afternoon in November, hundreds of students, faculty and staff gathered on Scott Plaza, right, to say "Good Morning, America," and to let the country know Elon was having a birthday.

At the fall Centennial Convocation, William Sloan Coffin encouraged the audience to hold fast to three things — truth, justice and peace.

Centennial Celebration

ELON'S BIG ADVENTURE

Birthdays call for a day of fun and festivities, but when a loved one turns 100, the celebration ought to last a year. That was the consensus of Elon's Centennial Planning Committee, which hosted 12 months worth of special events.

The celebration actually began in the spring of 88 when Elon turned 99. "Visions for a New Century" was chosen as the theme. A centennial logo was designed by Carolyn Messick of the publications staff, and soon graced the college stationery, business cards, and coffee mugs. The logo also was used on a banner and a flag.

At a College Coffee in March, the celebration began with a song contest. Campus organizations competed to present the most creative rendition of "Happy Birthday to Elon." There also were special birthday cakes in the shape of 99 and one which sported the centennial logo.

With the beginning of the 88-89 academic year came a full slate of centennial activities. A special College Coffee on September 1 was the official beginning of the Centennial Year. The centennial flag was raised for the first time, and Thad Eure, Secretary of State and Chairman of the College's Board of Trustees, was the guest speaker.

On September 15, the fall Centennial Convocation was held "under the oaks," with William Sloane Coffin as speaker. Coffin is a former chaplain at Yale University, a former pastor of Riverside Church in New York, and current president of SANE/FREEZE. A picnic lunch on the lawn served students, faculty, staff and guests.

Homecoming took on a centennial air with the theme "Pride in Our Past — Pride in Our Future." Homecoming queens from previous years took part in the parade, riding through the streets in cars made the year of their reign.

Elon took to the airways in November, when a camera crew from WTVD in Durham visited campus to air a greeting for Good Morning America. Hundreds of students, faculty and staff crowded onto the lawn while the cameraman was suspended high above them in a bucket truck. Over and over again in the warm afternoon sun, the crowd awaited the cameraman's cue for them to yell "Good Morning, America!"

Martin Marty, editor of Christian Century, was the speaker for the Centennial Church Convocation of February 16. Charles Shelby Rooks, executive vice president of the United Church of Christ Board of Homeland Ministries, also spoke on Elon's history and future as a church-related college.

Former president Jimmy Carter was the keynote speaker at the Centennial Symposium in April on "reaffirming a tradition of service." The symposium also included a keynote challenge on service professions by Professor John Sullivan and a Service Organization Fair.

The Centennial Open House, also in late April, invited community clubs provided fun and games once the classes were over.

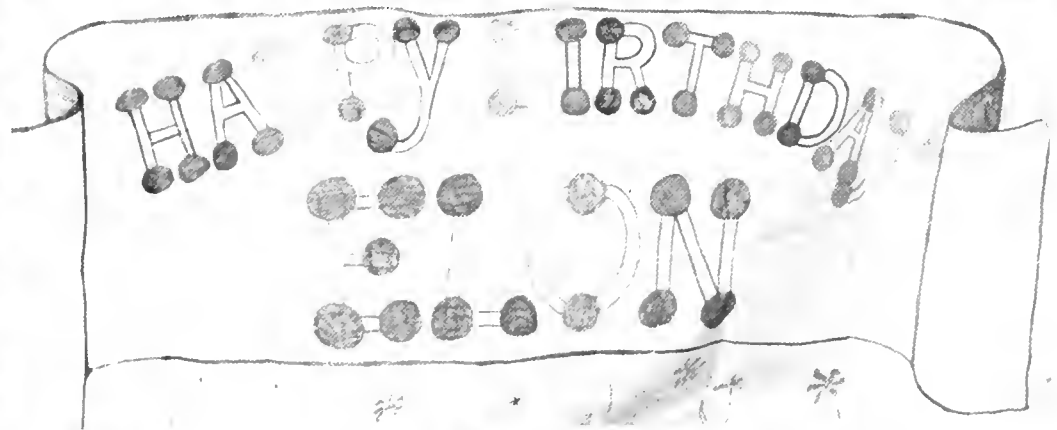

Voices from the Past, an original musical revue written by Loonis McGlohon in honor of Elon's centennial, was presented by the Fine Arts Department. McGlohon is the author of North Carolina Is My Home.

Throughout the year, special cultural events commemorated the college's 100th birthday, the faculty members took part in a Centennial Lecture Series.

President Fred Young and Pam Baker of the Development Staff, left, served cake to revellers at Elon's 99th Birthday Party.

Centennial Sights and Sounds

*Logo,
Logo
Everywhere!*

It was a hit from the very beginning. Publications Designer Carolyn Messick's centennial logo soon became known throughout the area, appearing on T-shirts, stadium cups, cross stitch samplers and lapel pins. At Elon, the graceful symbol of Elon's 100th anniversary was used on birthday cakes, a banner, a flag, the official College stationery, and even on a homecoming float.

Elon's centennial celebration was a cultural event for those who took advantage of all the special performances and displays which were featured. Early in the fall, several modern art sculptures were placed around campus, including the basketball hoop on a column, left. While not everyone appreciated the aesthetics of the sculptures, most agreed they awakened the campus' artistic awareness. The Warsaw Wind Quartet, below, was one of many special performances planned in celebration of the centennial.

to Dream On*

The dream lives on

Students, faculty and staff gathered on Monday, January 16, to commemorate the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Following a prayer at the fountain, the group joined in a peace march around the perimeter of the wall, singing "We Shall Overcome." While the day was not an official holiday, some students did not attend classes in observance of the federal holiday, and college employees had a choice of "King Day" or Good Friday as a floating holiday. On the evening of the 16th, the Black Cultural Society showed a collection of film clips on the life of the slain civil rights leader.

A Dream House

Following years of planning, dreaming and hoping, construction began in the fall on six Greek lodges. As the houses began to take shape, fraternities and sororities prepared for a lengthy application process to determine which groups would be allowed to move in next fall. Meanwhile, other students set their sights on the new apartment complex being built by the College just east of campus. Suddenly, the options for College-owned housing were plentiful.

Talent Show 88

A Year for Remembering

For many, the name of Elon College conjures up an image of a stately building with a fountain at its front steps. Alamance Building, right, is the focal point of campus — and for many, its image defines Elon. But those recently arrived are often amazed to learn a parking lot once occupied the area which is now called Scott Plaza. There was no fountain, and only a minimum of shrubbery and foliage graced the campus' front lawn. Even earlier, a less attractive building, below, housed Elon's administrative offices. The building, called simply Administration Building, burned during the fire of 1923. Friends of the college joined forces and rebuilt the campus including what was to become known as Alamance Building, shown under construction at bottom right.

Main Street, U.S.A.

The facades and businesses along Williamson Avenue have changed over the years, but the mood seems much the same. Once the home of a general store and a diner, the main thoroughfare through Elon then housed a barber and styling salon, the Elon Grill and town hall. These days, the college itself occupies a large portion of the storefront space on Williamson Avenue, with its telecommunications office and business annex alongside private businesses including a styling salon, Brown and Company Foodrinkery and record store. Occupants of town hall spent much of the year preparing to move into a new building under construction across the street. The names painted on storefront windows continue to change, but benches still invite passerby to sit for a spell and enjoy the peaceful goings on along Main Street, U.S.A.

Changes in the Student Center

When the health center moved to another location, the first floor of Long Student Center underwent extensive renovations. The Campus Shop was enlarged to include space formerly occupied by the health center and the commuter lounge. While the results were impressive, the still-cramped book store and the too-small second floor commuter lounge were obvious reminders that Elon had outgrown its student center, which was completed in _____. Plans got underway in the fall for construction of a new building. Students, faculty and staff met with an architect to determine what the campus needs were, as well as its wishes for the long-term project.

A New Health Center

The Rich House, located just northeast of Powell Building and northwest of Baxter House, this fall became the Robert N. Ellington Health Center. Named for the college physician, the house which had been willed to the college was completely refurbished during the summer. The new facility includes office space for both Dr. Ellington and Health Services Director Janie Salter, as well as two upstairs sick rooms. A large, comfortable reception area makes the waiting more pleasant.

Amid tears and grief, thousands of people who had died of AIDS were memorialized in October in ceremonies centered on a huge quilt made by friends and family members of the victims. All 50 states and a dozen foreign countries were represented in the 375,000-foot quilt.

Forest fires spread throughout the western United States in the summer of 1988, destroying millions of acres of national parkland. The most heavily damaged was Yellowstone National Park.

It became an international effort of good will. Russian and American rescuers cut through the ice in Alaska to save two California grey whales. The whales were trapped in the ice for more than three weeks.

The shuttle Discovery blasted into orbit in September, the first space flight since the shuttle Challenger mission ended tragically 73 seconds after liftoff in January 1986. The Discovery ended its successful four-day, 1.6 million mile mission with a triumphant landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

One For the Fans

Olympic runner Florence Griffith Joyner, the glamour girl of track, dazzled spectators at the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea. Flo Jo, who became famous for her lightening speeds, flashy outfits and outrageously long fingernails, won three gold medals and one silver.

The summer games opened with a dramatic ceremony. A colorful three-hour spectacle mixing ancient Korean rituals with space-age technology kicked off 16 days of athletic competition. Among the medal winners for the United States were diver Greg Louganis, who won two gold medals, track and field star Carl Lewis who won two gold medals and one silver, and swimmer Matt Biondi, who brought home five gold, and a silver and a bronze.

Canadian Ben Johnson, at left in photo above, looks over at arch rival Carl Lewis at the finish of the 100-meter race in the 1988 Summer Games. Johnson won the gold, but was later disqualified after traces of an anabolic steroid were found in his system.

It was a gold medal and a world record in the 400-meter freestyle for Janet Evans of Placentia, California. The 17-year-old high school senior won three gold medals.

The World Series belonged to the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Dodgers captured their sixth World Series title in October with a victory over the Oakland A's.

*Hooray

The California Raisins caught the interest of television viewers as they danced to "I Heard It Through the Grapevine" in a commercial to stimulate the sale of raisins. Figurines of the little guys were hot items at Hardee's restaurants, and soon their wrinkled faces showed up on t-shirts, bed sheets and greeting cards.

The Duke and Duchess of York, whose wedding kept the tabloids in business last year, named their daughter Beatrice Elizabeth Mary. The child was born August 8, 1988 to the former Sarah Ferguson and her husband, Prince Andrew.

Miss America 1988 is Gretchen Elizabeth Carlson from Minnesota, a 22-year-old classical violinist who plans to study law at Harvard.

In one of the biggest marriages of the year, heavy weight boxer Mike Tyson wed actress Robin Givens. But the stormy marriage lasted less than a year. Givens filed for divorce amid rumors that Tyson had physically abused her. After being accused of marrying "Iron Mike" for his money, the actress announced she wouldn't take a dime from him.

Late night television host David Letterman enjoyed a fast growing audience of fans who appreciated his sardonic smile and irreverent comedy.

Saturday Night Live continued to keep Americans glued to their sets. Box office wonder Tom Hanks and rock musician Keith Richards opened the show's 14th season in September.

And then there was Cher. The daringly-dressed singer turned actress won the Academy Award for Best Actress for her portrayal of a superstitious young widow in "Moonstruck."

*It's Still

A rowdy new group called Guns n' Roses, left, hit the scene in 1988 and won MTV's Best New Artist award for a spirited video called "Welcome to the Jungle." Tracey Chapman, below, was among the singers who opened a global rock tour of human rights by Amnesty International

Bruce Springsteen and Patti Scialfa, left, ham it up on stage during a concert. The two rockers became an item during the summer.

Ziggy Marley, below, son of the late reggae star Bob Marley, gave up stand-up performance in July in the Negev Desert of Israel during the Third World Music Festival.

The Irish rock group U2 wallows in the applause during the Grammy Award ceremony. The group was honored with Album of the Year for "The Joshua Tree," which sold 12 million copies.

The faculty handled all phases of the academic work and supervised conduct of the students. The rules of discipline were strict, unnecessarily so it seems, but were similar to those at other colleges of the day.

In addition to (the) rules, students were given dress guidelines in the (1891-91) catalog:

For economy and to avoid unpleasant distinctions in dress, young ladies will be required to wear a black uniform. The trimmings and skirts to be determined by the individual's taste. It is desired that the quality shall not be expensive, but heavy enough to hold the color and last through the winter.

Young men need plain and substantial, but not expensive clothing. As a general rule, the more money a student spends on dress the less time is given to study.

A sense of humor helps

It takes a special kind of person to work on a college campus. To survive at Elon, faculty and staff members need a measure of patience, a touch of kindness and a hint of humor.

IF YOU CAN SMILE AMIDST ALL THIS CHAOS . . . Area Coordinator P.J. Wyatt, at right, is all smiles on orientation day as she awaits the arrival of 400 freshmen residents of East Campus.

Overton and Food Services Assistant Director Dan O'Mayer are ready to serve the centennial cake at College Coffee.

A legend retires

At the fall meeting of the board of trustees, Thad Eure announced his retirement as chairman of the board effective May 31, 1989. Eure has served on the board for 47 years and served as chairman for 34.

"Mr. Eure's retirement will be a great loss to Elon College," College President Fred Young said, adding that the board's stability during Eure's tenure "is testimony to his character and integrity, to his effectiveness as a leader, and to the selfless nature of his service."

Eure also retired this year from his post as North Carolina Secretary of State. He has served in that capacity since 1936.

Thad Eure spoke at a College Coffee which kicked off Elon's centennial celebration, while President Fred Young looked on.
